Sofia Gronvall, Sweden
Reporter for China Drive Program
Mar. 2009 - May 2009

"I started off my internship with some basic tasks such as summarizing articles. As time went by, I received more and more responsibility and I started writing my own articles from interviews I had conducted. Being interested in the clothing industry I focused on writing reports that related to this topic.

I also travelled to other cities as the only foreigner in a group of 20 Chinese reporters which gave me an exclusive insight on China through the eyes of a reporter, an experience which in today's society I consider being priceless."

Lisa Liu, Australia

Online English Department for China Radio Int.
Jun. 2008 - July 2008

“Working at CRI has been an interesting and rewarding experience. CRI is China’s largest international radio network, covering over forty different languages worldwide. I was positioned in the online English department. My four week internship was divided into the news team and the webcast team. In the news team my role was to translate and polish articles from Chinese to English as well as writing my own articles to be published on the website. Whilst I have some basic Chinese language foundation, I found these tasks challenging because the Chinese news writing style is different from English in structure and content.”

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ's)

What are the requirements?

You must be between 18-30 years of age and have at least an intermediate level of English. If you don't speak any Mandarin you will be required to undergo a minimum 4 week intensive Mandarin course.

What roles are available?

We have many roles available across a number of industries. We will endeavor to place you in the most appropriate company for your situation. Placement companies are in Beijing or Shanghai. See some potential options here.

How many host companies will I be offered?

Upon receiving your application, CV, cover letter and registration fee we will look for a suitable host company that best fits your situation.

If the initial offer is not to your liking, we will provide you an alternative host company.

What is the intensive Mandarin course?

In order to communicate at your internship it is important you can speak Mandarin at a basic level as a minimum.

We have designed a 4 week Mandarin course for you to undertake before your internship. Not only will this benefit you at your host company but in daily situations as well.

What happens when I arrive in China?

Our staff will pick you up from the airport and take you to your accommodation. There you will be given an orientation to China and we'll show you some local tourist spots before we go for a welcome meal.

On the first day of Mandarin classes we'll accompany you to the school. After the course we will take you to your host company.

What support is provided throughout the duration of the program?

We maintain regular contact with both you and your host company to ensure both parties are satisfied with the experience.

You are responsible for communicating with the company on minor matters. In the case of major issues we can be contacted to help resolve them.

We regularly arrange social gatherings which you will be invited to. Of course, if you have any questions or issues to raise yourself, you can contact us any time.

What accommodation options are there? How much is the cost of living there?

We currently offer accommodation in:

- Homestay (Beijing only)
- Shared housing complexes with other travelers/interns
- Single apartment

We encourage you to do a homestay with a Chinese family. Your level of Mandarin will accelerate the most by living with a Chinese family.

For shared or single apartments, we will prearrange a hotel for you to stay at for the first 4 weeks. We will then help you find a suitable apartment to move into after the 4 weeks in the hotel.

Living expenses are extremely cheap compared to your home country. Generally speaking, a daily budget of 100RMB can easily cover food, transport and some entertainment.

Do I receive an allowance?

Once you begin your internship, you will receive a daily allowance on work days. Hospitality interns also get meals and accommodation. This is in line with international practices. Occasionally, some roles may have an allowance but this would depend on the individual company and your related experience.

What kind of visa is needed?

You will need an 'F' visa to enter China, which is for business and cultural exchange programs. Mandarin study is also permitted under this visa.

As part of the visa fees we will arrange the necessary documentation that will enable you to obtain an 'F' visa. The visas are linked to the program and should not be used to obtain other work in China.

What about travel & personal liability insurance?

You definitely need insurance to cover personal liability, emergency, medical and repatriation expenses, loss and theft of luggage and valuables.

We also advise you to be covered for cancellation of trip and inability to continue the program.
